

Payday super checklist for employers: Steps to stay compliant

From 1 July 2026, employers must pay their employees' superannuation guarantee (SG) contributions at the same time as salary or wages. This new system is known as payday super.

Currently, most employers pay super on a quarterly basis. From July 2026, super will instead need to be paid each pay cycle.

The ATO has released a checklist to help employers prepare for this change. Below is a straightforward guide outlining what small businesses should be doing now to get ready.

If you're an employee, this article explains what your employer will need to do on your behalf from 1 July 2026. The aim of these changes is to ensure super is paid more frequently and reaches your super fund sooner.

NOW: UNDERSTAND THE NEW REQUIREMENTS

- From 1 July 2026, SG contributions must be paid on every payday
- SG contributions must generally reach employees' super funds within 7 business days after payday
- Super will be calculated using a new concept called "qualifying earnings", so it is important to understand what this covers. In simple terms, qualifying earnings include an employee's ordinary time earnings (OTE) – that is, payments for ordinary hours of work, as well as certain types of paid leave, allowances, bonuses and lump sum payments. Qualifying earnings also include commissions, salary sacrificed amounts to super, and payments made to workers captured under the expanded definition of employee, such as independent contractors who are paid mainly for their labour
- Employers will need to report OTE/qualifying earnings and superannuation liabilities via single touch payroll (STP) software

FEBRUARY TO MARCH 2026: PLAN AND PREPARE

- Decide how your business will move from quarterly payments to payday payments
- Speak to us as your trusted accountant or payroll provider if unsure about how to transition to payday super
- Review how paying super more often will affect your cash flow and update your cash-flow forecasting and budgeting processes accordingly (we can help with this)
- Make sure all employee super fund details are correct and confirm member account numbers and unique superannuation identifiers are up to date to prevent any errors
- Fix any warning messages you receive from your employees' super funds as incorrect details may cause payments to be rejected after 1 July 2026 causing a late payment

Start preparing early by checking that payroll software is ready, reviewing cash flow and confirming employee super details are correct. Payday super is a significant change, but with proper planning the transition can be smooth.

APRIL TO JUNE 2026: LOCK IN YOUR PLANS

- Confirm your payroll software will be ready for payday super
- If using a clearing house, check it can support payday super and whether updates are required
- If currently using the ATO Small Business Superannuation Clearing House (SBSCH), transition to an alternative clearing house provider before 1 July 2026, as the SBSCH will cease operating from that date
- Download and retain all SBSCH transaction history before 1 July 2026. Once the service permanently closes, records will no longer be accessible. These records may be required in the future to respond to ATO reviews, audits or employee enquiries
- Put a process in place to quickly fix any SG contributions payment errors
- Allow enough time for SG contributions to clear so the super fund receives the contribution within 7 business days after payday
- Keep clear records of all super payments
- Pay SG contributions for the January – March 2026 quarter by 28 April 2026

Commonwealth Seniors Health Card: What's changing from 20 March 2026

The Commonwealth Seniors Health Card (CSHC) can be valuable for many self-funded retirees, helping reduce out-of-pocket health costs (for example, cheaper PBS medicines and other concessions). But it's income tested, and an upcoming rise in deeming rates may affect some people's eligibility.

CSHC income cut-off thresholds

To qualify, you must meet the CSHC income test – there is no assets test. Centrelink assesses your (and your partner's) adjusted taxable income and this may also include deemed income from any account-based pensions (ABPs) you have.

The current CSHC income limits are:

- $101,105 p.a. if you're single
- $161,768 p.a. for couples (combined)
- $202,210 p.a. for couples separated by illness/respite care/prison.

What are deeming rates?

Deeming is the Government's method of assuming a set rate of return on financial assets, rather than using your actual earnings. It's designed to keep the rules simple and treat people consistently, regardless of how their money is invested.

Deeming commonly applies to assets such as:

- bank accounts and term deposits
- shares and managed funds.

For CSHC purposes, deeming is relevant if you have an ABP as these products are generally deemed and counted under the income test.

Deeming rates are increasing from 20 March 2026

The Government is increasing the deeming rates. From 20 March 2026, the new deeming rates will be:

- 1.25% (lower rate) for financial assets up to $64,200 (singles) and $106,200 (couples combined)
- 3.25% (upper rate) for financial assets above those thresholds.

How this could affect your CSHC

If you're close to the CSHC income limit, higher deeming rates can increase your assessed income even if your actual investment earnings don't change. That may mean you:

- lose eligibility for the CSHC, or
- don't qualify when you otherwise expected to.

This risk is greatest for self-funded retirees who have significant taxable income in addition to their ABP where deeming applies.

What to do next

If you're near the thresholds, it's worth reviewing your adjusted taxable income plus any deemed income using the new deeming rates.

If you're unsure how this impacts you, consider seeking advice. A quick calculation can often show whether you're comfortably under the limit or sitting in the "at risk" zone as the new rates begin. 📁

1 JULY 2026: PAYDAY SUPER STARTS

From 1 July 2026, payday super takes effect. To meet the new requirements, employers must:

- Pay SG contributions in full, on time and to the correct super fund. Failure to do so may result in penalties, including the superannuation guarantee charge (SGC), which can exceed the original super amount owed
- Ensure SG contributions are received by and allocated to employees' super funds within 7 business days of each payday
- Calculate SG contributions based on qualifying earnings
- Report qualifying earnings and SG liabilities via STP-enabled software
- Pay the final quarterly SG contribution for the April – June 2026 quarter by 28 July 2026
- Note that the SBSCH cannot be used for any payments made on or after 1 July 2026, and no late payment offset will apply for that final quarter.

➡ FINAL REMINDER

Start preparing early by checking that payroll software is ready, reviewing cash flow and confirming employee super details are correct. Payday super is a significant change, but with proper planning the transition can be smooth. If you are uncertain about how the new rules will affect your cash flow or payroll processes, please contact us – we are here to help ensure everything is in place before the July 2026 start date. 📁

FBT Checklist 2025-26

With the due date for FBT returns coming up, the following non-exhaustive checklist may prove useful in determining whether you as an employer have an FBT liability.

Although it will generally fall to your accountant to prepare the FBT return from your software file or other records, all of the instances where you have provided employees and/or their associates (eg, spouse) with a potential fringe benefit may not always be apparent to them. To assist you in bringing these potential benefits to the attention of your accountant, following is a general checklist to refer to.

CAR FRINGE BENEFITS		Y	N		Y	N
» Does a car fringe benefit arise?	☐	☐		incurred in the course of performing employment-related duties, and
For FBT purposes a "car" is:				• non-work-related use that is minor, infrequent and irregular. This means (according to the ATO) less than 1,000 kms of private vehicle use for the FBT year, with no single private use journey in excess of 200 kms. (The ATO expects the employer to exercise some oversight over the minor, infrequent and irregular use of the vehicle.)
• any motor-powered road vehicle (including a four-wheel drive) that is designed to carry:
• less than one tonne, and
• fewer than nine passengers.
» Were any vehicles provided to employees (or associates) during the FBT year?	☐	☐		» Is the vehicle a dual cab vehicle?	☐	☐
You make a car available for private use by an employee on any day that either:				If so, the vehicle will qualify for the work-related use exemption only if:
(a) the car is actually used for private purposes by the employee, or				• it is designed to carry a load of one tonne or more, or more than eight passengers, or
(b) the car is available for the private use of the employee.				• while having a designed load capacity of less than one tonne, it is not designed for the principal purpose of carrying passengers.
A car is treated as being available for private use by an employee on any day that either:				» Is the vehicle a "modified" vehicle?	☐	☐
(a) the car is not at the employer's premises, and the employee is allowed to use it for private purposes, or				Certain modified vehicles are exempt from FBT where modifications permanently change a car and cannot be readily reversed for the car to be regularly used alternately as a passenger or non-passenger car. An example of such a vehicle is a hearse.
(b) the car is garaged at the employee's home.				» Is the vehicle an unregistered vehicle?	☐	☐
» If so, was the vehicle designed to carry less than one tonne and fewer than nine passengers?	☐	☐		If a car is unregistered for the full FBT year and used principally for business purposes (such as off-road or cars used on farms), any private use is exempt from FBT. A car that may be lawfully driven on a public road is regarded as being registered.
If so, the vehicle would be classified as a "car" for FBT purposes. If not, the provision of the vehicle may constitute a "residual fringe benefit" (see later). Different requirements in valuing the benefit then apply.				» Does the vehicle qualify for the electric cars exemption?	☐	☐
Exemptions				Zero or low emission vehicles (including some plug-in hybrids) are exempt from FBT where they are first held from 1 July 2022 and made available to current employees or associates. This incentive will apply until at least 2027, when there is to be a review. The GST-inclusive cost of the EV cannot exceed $91,387, which is the Luxury Car Tax threshold for fuel efficient vehicles for 2025-26. Plug-in hybrids have lost their exemption after 31 March 2025 unless there is a binding commitment to continue to provide the vehicle after that date.
» Is the vehicle a taxi, panel van or utility?	☐	☐
If so, an exemption is available where there is private use of the vehicle by a current employee and the vehicle is either:
• a taxi, panel van or a utility designed to carry less than one tonne, or
• any other road vehicle designed to carry less than one tonne which is not designed to principally carry passengers, and
• the employee's use of such a vehicle is limited to:
• travel between home and work
• travel incidentals where travel expenses are

CAR PARKING FRINGE BENEFITS

	Y	N
» Does a car parking fringe benefit arise?	☐	☐	- the car is used for travel between home and work at least once on that day - the provision of the parking facility is in respect of the employment of the employee - the car is owned by, leased to, or otherwise under the control of the employee, and - the employee has a primary place of employment on that day and the parking is at or in the vicinity of that primary place of employment. Small businesses (gross turnover less than $10 million or aggregated turnover less than $50 million) are exempt from car parking FBT unless employees are using a commercial car parking station.
A car parking fringe benefit arises in relation to a particular day where all of the following conditions are present on that day: - the car is parked on business premises or associated premises of the provider - a commercial parking station is located within a 1km radius of the premises at which the car is parked - the lowest fee charged by the operator of any such commercial parking station located within a 1km radius for all-day parking on the first "business day" of the FBT year is more than the "car parking threshold" ($11.03 for the 2025-26 FBT year). - the car is parked on the premises for more than four hours (cumulative) between 7.00am and 7.00pm on that day
